DAILY SENTINEL.

"I WOULD RATHER BE RIGHT THAN BE PRESIDENT."—Henry Clay.

THE SENTINEL.

Monday, January 14, 1867.

The Anniversary Banquet—Effect of President Johnson's Presence and Brief Remarks—The Speeches of Judge Black, Senator Cowan, and others.

[Special Correspondence Baltimore Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, January 11, 1867.—The banquet given in honor of the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans was an imposing affair. The President entered the dining room at about 9 o'clock, and was received with rapturous and prolonged applause. He remained until half-past 11. I see that you have published the toast he gave, and his few prefatory remarks.—I could give but a faint idea of the effect they produced upon the audience, were I to attempt it. At no time since his elevation to the Presidency has he given such decided evidence that he may be fully trusted in any emergency, and that he will be found equal to the task of meeting the dangers that threaten the country. His presence seemed to inspire the speakers with a spirit which had been quite unusual for the past few years. It would be invidious to particularize, but I may, with propriety, say that the speechers of Messrs. Black, Cowan, Doolittle, Merrick and Rodgers, exhibited a tone far different from the timid and truckling elocution indulged in of late by the opponents of congressional usurpation. In impassioned and emphatic language the President was pointedly told by these gifted orators that upon the first attempt of the plotters at the Capitol to carry their infamous insurrectionary projects into practical effect, they would look to him as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, to exercise his functions to their full extent, and that they could, after the occurrences of this evening, rely with renewed and undoubting assurance on his determination to do his full duty.

Mr. Cowan, in portraying the monstrous violations of the Constitution already perpetrated by Congress in expelling members avowedly to secure sufficient majorities; in refusing representatives to ten States, whose right to seats was as clear as those of Massachusetts, and in hundreds of other usurpations, frequently paused to ask—What then? What is the remedy? What is to be done? These usurpations—these practical violations of the Constitution, he contended, were as gross as those committed by Cromwell when he "purged the House of Commons." "They called," he said, "for practical redress"—and eyeing the President steadfastly for a moment, he continued, "and the means of this redress cannot be found in speeches, however eloquent and logical; in conventions, however numerously or harmoniously attended; or in banquets, however splendidly supplied—but in practical action, in firmness and in courage."

"It occurs to us that if ever men came to Washington chop fallen, humiliated, mortified, and distressed, the whilom dictator of the House, and his meretricious confrere, who is the editor and proprietor of 'two newspapers, both daily,' Sundays included, must be those men. * * * Mr. Stevens repaired in 'pride of power and place' to Harrisburg. He was followed by the editor of the Chronicle, for both of whom, it was announced by telegram, suites of parlors had been put in a suitable state of preparation for the arrival of men who supposed themselves so capable of riding the storm. Their levers could move the world of radicalism. They came, saw, and were demolished. Scarce a sign is left of them. We cannot see how either can hold up their heads among the political characters of the Capital, to whom they have essayed to give the nod.—What a 'lame and impotent conclusion!' But seven votes in the Republican caucus for the 'great commoner,' backed by the editor and proprietor of 'two newspapers, both daily,' Sundays included!

GOOD FOR CHEATHAM.—The Nashville correspondent of the Missouri Republican, who sat near Ben Wade and Gen. Cheatham at the recent Congressional banquet at Nashville, gives the substance of what the gallant son of Tennessee said to that rough old bear, Wade, of Ohio. He assured the Senator he was a law-abiding citizen, in whom he thought the government might repose confidence. Yet he wished it understood distinctly he came to his duty with no sobs and tears of pretended contrition. He was quite twenty-one when he enlisted as a fighting rebel and was not a seduced innocent. But he was defeated and surrendered, and now, the government for which he had once fought with a foreign foe could not have from him a flood of sniveling protestations, like those of a cudgeled urchin, but simply a soldier's word of honor.

A wicked wag says the reason young ladies look so bold and fierce in these latter days is, that they tie their hair so tightly on the back of the head that they cannot shut their eyes, which gives them their fierce look; and then their tremendous waterfalls so balance their heads up that they seem to "cock their chins" at everybody, hence their bold, defiant look.

A Western editor says: We learn from South America that there is "war on the Plate;" and Prentice adds: When Butler was in New Orleans there was a terrible war on the plate—the gold and silver plate.

The largest diamond in America, valued at $20,000, is on exhibition at New Orleans.

The aggregate cost of the buildings erected in Chicago, last year, was $8,000,000.

A Pew in a Boston church sold recently for $5,400.

A daily newspaper man, who had just got out of the traces, says he is becoming quite well acquainted with his family. He discovered, to his surprise, that his daughter could play on the piano. He never had time to discover the fact before.

It is stated that 23,745 persons in the South will be rendered incapable of holding office by the adoption of the constitutional amendment.

Pork is so abundant in West Virginia that it brings only six cents a pound, and dull sales at that.

THE SENTINEL.

Politics Among the Blacks.

There are no enemies to our Southern colored population, so dangerous to their future welfare, as that class of demagogues, like Mr. Holden and others, who are endeavoring to excite and stir them up upon the subject of politics.—There is nothing which becomes so engrossing, and which so excites and blinds men, as politics, and none are so susceptible to the bad influences of political clamor as the ignorant and the vicious.

Our colored people need food and raiment—they need to have their minds directed to the necessity of systematic, skillful, free labor—to have their thoughts first devoted to the idea of living independently of others, by procuring what they and their families consume by their own honest labor and management, and to learn to look to the laying up for the future something in the shape of property for another day. These are the first topics upon which our colored population should be educated, and along with these comes the intellectual and moral improvement of the race. The fact that there are a few blacks in every Southern community, whose advantages have been superior to others, who have acquired some education and some little property, and consequently have influence among their race, makes the matter still worse. This class become too often the easy dupes of unprincipled white men, both Northern and Southern men, selfish demagogues or prompted by an unfounded hatred against the whites.

Nine-tenths of the blacks, never having been obliged to provide for themselves heretofore, are easily persuaded by demagogues to rely upon them, to be guided and instructed by them, and to imagine that respectability and support can be obtained without hard labor. No portion of the blacks will be so easily persuaded to adopt the schemes of the speculator and the demagogue, in order to live on the labor and toil of the more ignorant, more honest and more industrious blacks. An aristocracy is thus early growing up among them. Many of the more managing ones are discouraging them from laboring for the whites, in order to secure their services for themselves. The women and the ignorant males are becoming the laborers and slaves for the intelligent among them, and they are deluded with ideas of what the Congress and the Northern people will do for them, if they will put themselves under their political control. They are taught to believe that the privilege of voting is the great means of becoming wise, and great and rich; that lands and stock are to be the rewards of voting and the direct road to wealth and power.

We do not know positively that Mr. Holden, in his late African Church speeches, held out to them these delusive hopes, but we learn that many of the blacks, who do not profess to have understood him fully, are strongly imbued with these ideas, and prompt to vote and becoming of political importance in the country, readily contribute money to further the objects of these demagogues, and are much elated with their prospects.

Suffrage we regard as one of the highest behests of an American citizen. But it can only be a safe privilege, either to the country or the people, when it is properly exercised. Intelligence and virtue are the only safeguards to the performance of the duty. If colored people, who are at all intelligent, will think for a moment, they will see that politics will not pay—that there is no bread and meat in it,—that as it has been a source of division and strife among the whites, it is obliged to be so among them, and that only as intelligence and virtue increase among the people, both white and black, will it be safe to extend the elective franchise. Experience has shown, that the condition of the whites has not been bettered by allowing too great a license to the privilege of voting, even among them. The fact is palpable that, when, years ago, the free blacks were allowed to vote, it became to them a source of great evil, and those who received their suffrages were not profited by it.

Statesmen and philanthropists, who investigate this subject, will readily see that the true interest of the negro in the South cannot, at this early period, be promoted by conferring upon him the right of suffrage. Their attention will be first directed to his material, mental and religious condition. To be taught what is useful and necessary, to inspire him with the spirit of personal independence, to teach him the arts of skillful husbandry and mechanics, to care for his body and his soul, and to protect him in the full enjoyment of civil rights, are the true foundations of manhood and freedom for him. The colored man who neglects these, to dabble in politics and follow the demagogues, will grow poorer, and meaner and more worthless, while he who industriously strives to grow better and wiser and richer by his own labor, and shuns as a viper those political associations and discussions, will grow in influence and independence every day.

THE IMPEACHMENT CHARGES.—Data, of the Baltimore "Sun," says that the Judiciary Committee have not commenced the investigation of the impeachment charges preferred by Mr. Ashley. The latter was with the committee informally, to make known the character of the testimony he proposes to offer. The deprecatory tone of the Northern press has had a salutary effect upon some of those who were urging impeachment merely upon polical partisan interests.

Another correspondent says that the pressure against the impeachment project is very great, and remonstrances are pouring in from all quarters, by mail and telegraph. The Judiciary Committee will consider Mr. Ashley's resolutions without delay.

The Commission to Washington.

The appointment of a Commission to Washington, to look after the interests of North Carolina, is not relished by the Ex. P. G. He has so long had his sway there, and his own efforts and those who are in his interest have so long misled and deceived Congress and the Northern public, by their false and wicked misrepresentations, it was high time for the Legislature to adopt some plan, by which his nefarious schemes could be frustrated and overturned. The Governor has been happy in his selection, in view of the objects of the Commission, and the addition of Hon. Nath. H. Boyden, recently, to its number, is equally so. Mr. Holden is specially disturbed at the acceptance of Col. Brown. He would have perhaps been more gratified if all of them had declined.

The loyalty, Unionism and reliability of all of these gentlemen, viz: Judge Merrimon, Col. Bedford Brown, P. H. Winston, Esq., Gen. J. M. Leach, Hon. Lewis Hanes and Hon. N. Boyden, Mr. Holden fully endorsed for months after the surrender. We do not recollect that he has assailed the loyalty of any of them since. He has endorsed most of them by appointing or recommending them to office. He will not dare to question their devotion to the Union and the interests of the country. Whatever countenance these gentlemen may have given him, either during or since the war, they have abandoned him and his principles and schemes totally. Col. Brown, whom of all public men in the State he has never assailed, could stand him no longer. He rallies to the help of the country and the State, though well stricken in years, when he finds the Constitution about to be wrecked and the country ruined. It is more than Holden can bear.—And there is Mr. Boyden, upon whom he counted for help in his extremity, he shook Holden off, a year ago, when he saw his aims. Holden cannot, with any face, assail these men, but attacks the Legislature and Gov. Worth for the expense incurred, and demagogically sheds crocodile tears over the maimed soldiers of the late Confederacy! O! thou whited sepulchre!

For the Sentinel.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—What did your neighbor mean, the other day, when, straightening himself up and clenching his fists, he swore that there was "iron in his blood?" Did he mean anything particularly awful? Some of our women were dreadfully scared,—some too who ought not to be, just at present. The terrible man should consider that he is responsible for the probable consequences of such dangerous language. Let not our interesting weak ones be too much alarmed. Gubernatorial blood is much like other people's, only a little more so, perhaps. In passing backwards and forwards through the heart it stops a moment and deposits much of its iron in that wonderful organ, and doubtless if the heart of this man should be microscopically examined, it would be found to be very hard, as well as small, and that most of the iron is collected and concentrated there.

But he may have been speaking only in metaphor, iron-ically as it were. He may have meant only to intimate that he is a man of iron nerve, who is after "Union-Union-Union of some sort, of any sort," and who will have it, or die a-trying. Little Jeworthy is evidently the model after which the crazy old iron monger from Pennsylvania is working.

When in Washington City, our honored friend was allowed to sleep with old Thad., who, ever since his iron works were burnt by the Confederate army, has been sadly afflicted with iron on the brain. His talk is always of iron, and his dreams by night are a conjumblement of hot places for rebels, molten ores, spikes and tenpenny nails, and then branching off into the story of Jael and Sisera. Whereupon, dreaming that he had the head of the sleeping Confederacy (so called) under his knee, the iron avenger hammered away. He gave our friend, his bed-fellow, some awful punches that night when under that frightful hallucination. It is thought by some that our unfortunate friend caught much of his mad-dogery in this singular way; that it was pummelled into him when sleeping with Thad., and that he really imagines he has as much iron in his blood as the old Conestoga from Penn. certainly has on the brain. Others suppose that, in attempting to drive the iron into the head of his somnolent victim, he missed his aim and smelted it into his heart, where it remains to this day, and is very harmless—to others.

I have given you, Messrs. Editors, only my conjectures. There may be little in them, however ingenious they may be considered.—One thing is certain, that, whenever our iron friend pays a visit to the foundry man at Washington City, he always comes back with a harder heart than he went with.

I pray you, as guardians of the peace and prosperity of our declimated, to quiet the alarms of those who cannot bear great excitements, by such soothing assurances as it may be in your power to give.

MRS. KATE CRESCENT.

GENERAL GRANT'S POSITION.—A Washington correspondent of the Baltimore "Sun" says that it has been denied by some correspondents that General Grant approved the President's veto message, and an attempt is made in a paragraph explanatory of General Grant's position to show that he did not approve the message. That paragraph itself states that with reference to conferring the right of suffrage upon the colored people of the District, Gen. Grant remarked that "he always thought it inconsistent on the part of Congress to enforce this right here while they refused to grant it to the same class in their own States. Either members of Congress should extend this privilege at home, or wait until the people here ask for it." It is evident from this quotation that General Grant approved the very pith and marrow of the message, and it is not necessary to cavil about whether he expressed an opinion upon the arguments in the message or not.

LOYAL VIRGINIANS, So CALLED.—In the United States Senate, on Wednesday, Mr. Sumner presented a petition from loyal citizens of Norfolk, Portsmouth and adjoining counties of Virginia, without distinction of color, asking Congress to review the present anti-republican form of government now existing in Virginia, which deprives them of their rights and franchise.—He stated that this was the forerunner of a much more numerously signed petition. Referred to the Committee on Reconstruction.

A new Methodist Church was dedicted to the service of Almighty God in Baltimore on Sunday last. The sermon on the occasion was preached by Bishop Doggett.

WE REGRET that our limited space prevents us from publishing entire the late Address of the Representatives elect of Texas to the Congress and people of the United States. We give such portions of it as have most forcibly impressed us. It is one of the ablest, most thoughtful and dispassionate appeals that has, as yet, emanated from any quarter, and we should have great hopes of its producing a profound impression upon the mind of Congress, and of the North, did we not realize how intensely madness rules the hour. As a calmly worded statement of the late sad controversy, a conclusive argument against the constitutionality and policy of continued exclusion, and a manly, frank avowal of the abandonement of the teachings of secession, and of fidelity to the Union, under the Constitution, it is alike admirable.

Without further preliminary, we commend the subjoined extracts to the attention of our readers:

Address of the Texan Delegation.

[EXTRACT.]

It is now proposed, as the means of protecting "Southern Loyalists," Northern men, and negroes, and of reforming State governments generally in the South, to set aside the State governments now existing, and, either directly or through Territorial governments, to erect new State governments, based upon the suffrage of the Southern Loyalists and negroes, and upon the disfranchisement and disqualification from office of all those who adhered to and aided in the rebellion, excepting those only who may be relieved from such disability by Congress. This plan is understood to be proposed by some of the Southern Loyalists themselves, and advocated by prominent members of Congress.

It presents an entirely new feature in our affairs, that rises above the mere exclusion of our representatives from Congress. It takes for granted that the whole question of war and peace is still open. That depends upon stubborn facts in the past, and no construction can now alter them, or warp the legitimate deductions from them. What are they? The Government of the United States took measures to prevent the withdrawal of the Southern States, and by the proclamations of the President, and by the resolutions of both Houses of Congress, and by diplomatic correspondence with other powers, defined and announced its objects in carrying on the war to be for the preservation of the Union, "with all the dignity, equality, and rights of the States unimpaired," and not in "any spirit of oppression, nor for any purpose of conquest or subjugation." Such an object, so declared, raised up hosts to fight the battles of the Union, and stayed the hands of foreign powers. To carry it out, Congress afterwards authorized the President to extend an amnesty and pardon.

All of the authoritative acts of the General Government during the whole war, it is believed, spoke the same language; and under and by that policy the war was brought to a successful close. It was on that ground, and that only, that the right was claimed to prosecute the war at all.

It was on that ground that the Confederate Government would never be recognized, and, therefore, no treaty was made with it at the surrender.

The manifest intention with which an act is done, in law and reason, forms a part of the act itself, and gives character to it.

Considering the objects of the war as here shown, and as made known to the world, and acted upon throughout, the surrender of the Southern armies and orders of the President, constitute in effect a pacification upon terms as binding upon the good faith of the Goverment of the United States, and upon the Southern people, as though they had been stipulated in a treaty.

This proposition rests upon the basis that the President had the power to use the means which he did, and that the people of the Southern States have, in good faith, complied with what was required or expected of them.

The soldiers of the Southern army surrendered under the obligation to repair to their homes and obey the laws of the country. Under a law of Congress, giving the President the power, under such terms and conditions as might meet his approbation, he issued his proclamation tendering to the mass of the people amnesty and pardon, upon their taking an oath in effect surrendering the issues of the war—secession and slavery. Afterwards, through his proclamations, the President instituted provisional governments, for the purpose of enabling the people of the States who had taken the oath to reform their State governments and resume their relations as States of the Union.

Through this instrumentality, and for such purpose, that being the consideration in part inducing them, the people of Texas responded to the call for a convention, and did in convention by delegates assembled make a political surrender of the questions at issue in the war, and their incidents, as previously stated herein, thereby binding not only those who had been bound by the amnesty oath, but every one in the State, with their posterity after them. Is it to be held as nothing that a people who had espoused cherished principles of government, and had attested their sincerity during a struggle in camp and field of four years, should, by affirmative action, surrender them under the solemnity of oaths and constitutions, and thereby deprive themselves of the privilege, in conscience and right, to revive them should an opportunity in future present itself? They did it in good faith, and did it not for the mere love of the thing itself, but upon an obvious consideration—to be enabled thereby to readjust their State government, and to restore their Federal relations in the Union.

The President had a right we believe, to effect a complete pacification upon such terms. Had it been regarded doubtful we were in no situation to call it in question without great disadvantage to us. It would have been denounced as evidence of an incorrigibly rebellious spirit if we had refused to take the amnesty oath or assemble in convention. But the President had the power, we think, not that he is the Government, any more than that Congress or the Federal judiciary is the Government. For while all these departments constitute the Government, each one of them represents and binds the Government when acting within the scope of its authority—the Congress to prescribe the rules of action, the President to execute them, and the judiciary to construe and enforce them when brought within the scope of its jurisdiction.

It is not to be denied that the war was prosecuted on the theory of the Government, that a State had no right to secede, and that the ordinances of secession were utterly void and of no effect. Under no other view could force have been rightfully used to prevent secession. Under this view the President needed no rule in view of the declared objects of the war. He simply held the Southern States in subjection to his military authority until they voluntarily embraced the amnesty and pardon which Congress had authorized him to tender them, and conformed their State governments to the results of the war, and orderly acquiesced in the extension over the country of Federal authority in every department, military, financial, postal, and judicial. Had the people of the Southern States been obstinate and refused to reorganize their State governments and resume their Federal relations, some legislation might have become necessary. Or had the Congress been in session, it might or might not have prescribed some additional or different rule for consummating the pacification and restoring the Federal relations of the States. But the fact that the President accomplished it without the necessity of any additional law to aid or guide him, makes it equally binding upon all the departments of the Government, as though each had participated in it. Texas having in good faith performed everything required of her in the pacification and resumption of Federal relations, awaits the result with patient solicitude. If the war was really not waged in the "spirit of oppression, and for the purpose of conquest and subjugation," she may well hope that she has done enough to entitle her to the "dignity, equality, and rights" of a State within the Union.

This new project ignores or disregards all these considerations, and seeks to make the government now, nearly two years after the cessation of hostilities, and after the pacification has been completed, and the Federal relations all resumed, except representation in Coogress, adopt a new policy by treating us as a subjugated people, without laws, without government, without State boundaries, without public property of any kind, without social organization, with our lives and property at the will of the conqueror. It is believed and respectfully submitted that such a thing is impossible, without a perversion of facts as notorious as the war itself, without a breach of faith to the brave soldiers who conquered us to preserve the Union of the States; without a breach of faith to the nations of Europe, who were assured that the object of the war was only to preserve the Union, and who under such assurances saw us overwhelmed; and should it be regarded as a matter of any importance, without a breach of faith to the Southern people, who surrendered their arms, and the principles at issue in the war, and complied with what was necessary to secure peace and restore their political relations, with a full knowledge of, and in reference to, the avowed and notorious object of the war on the part of the United States. Should the government of the United States change its whole policy on that subject, regarding the war as still progressing, as it must do, and demand, either in express terms or in effect, of the people of Texas, such a surrender—the most abject known to war—"a capitulation at will," Texas may, and doubtless will have to, submit to it. But it should be known and declared to the world to be a new surrender that will cancel, in conscience, all the obligations assumed in the one she has hitherto made.

Before breaking asunder such ties, and plunging the whole country into such confusion, distrust, and disaffection as, we fear, must ensue, let us most respectfully beg a patient and dispassionate examination of the whole subject in all its bearings and consequences. The Constitution should be again unrolled, and clear and definite ideas fully grasped upon the momentous questions now pending. The proposition presupposes that Texas is dead, politically defunct! Texas was carved out of the domain of Mexico by the swords of the patriots of '36, who gave it shape and form, and breathed into it the breath of life, and it became an organized body, an independent political society. Annexation did not destroy its corporate existence. It only modified its powers and relations. The late war did not destroy its corporate existence an hour or a day. A succession of others by the same supreme government, with the same powers and duties as those displaced, and whose acts were afterwards recognized by the convention, could not destroy its corporate existence. Under the strongest theory of the Federal Government, as expounded by such jurists and statesmen as Story and Webster, it has always been admitted that a State on entering the Union retained a portion of its sovereignty for the regulation of its own local and domestic concerns, upon which its State government is founded. Those powers of the State of Texas, thus reserved, were not in any way affected by loss or gain during or at the end of the war, because the controversy was not about them, but about the powers that had been delegated to the United States on annexation, and as to whether they could or should be withdrawn and vested into another confederacy for their exercise. So equally on the doctrine that a State could secede, rightfully or wrongfully, the State government still existed at the close of the war, though a different mode of readjustment of Federal relations might have been necessary. Again, the use of the State government in hostility to the General Government does not of itself destroy the State government any more when it fails than when it succeeds. The existence of a government is a matter of fact, and not of legal fiction. Nothing but the conquest and subjugation, evidenced in some way as being intended and declared by the United States, and submitted to by Texas, could annihilate the State. That can hardly be assumed to have been the case. If Texas may now be demolished as a State, the precedent is set, and the principle established, that the General Government may, for such acts as a majority in Congress may deem sufficient to have forfeited its political existence, set aside a State government and reduce it to a Territory.

The danger of such a principle to republican freedom is above description; and words will fail to express the dismay, horror, and reckless despair of the people of Texas, if they should have the misfortune to live to see the power of the United States used in pulling down the venerated pillars and in digging up the deeply settled foundations of their State government, endeared to them by its own beauty and merits, and enshrined in their hearts by a history and a name of which her sons, whether in freedom or in bondage, will ever be proud.

As to the disfranchisement and disqualification of "rebels" in Texas in this scheme, it is only necessary to bring to mind the universal truth, that love begets love, kindness begets kindness, generosity begets gratitude; and it cannot be pretended as yet that the people of Texas have advanced high enough in the sliding scale of Christian civization as to be above the murky atmosphere of hate. Too many of us will fail to love those who may despitefully use us. It is the part of wisdom to recognize and act upon the fact that this was no mere insurrection, or petty rebellion of a district, that was contemplated in the Constitution to be punished by prosecutions as therein prescribed. That is found impracticable, because it was a great civil war of sections, embracing whole States, and the stamina, intellectual and physical, of the great body of the people in each of these States.

Why is it that the Irish will not adopt English civilization and pride of country? Because they hate England for its traditional oppression of Ireland. Surely that lesson ought to be known, without learning it by bitter experience in America. The way is still open to keep us one people, rising out of this life and death struggle with common motives and aspirations for the prosperity and glory of the common country, and not bound together by the galling fetters of cold iron. Christian charity and liberal statesmanship point the way.

We must earnestly desire their exercise towards our people. They are in a tone of mind now to appreciate the necessity of progress, so as to keep peace with the safe advances of the age in intellectual, social, material, and political development. Their faces are already turned in that direction, with the hope that a powerful and magnanimous government will neither thrust them back with its frowns and blows, nor drive them along with a blinding rapidity.

Texas has now done what she has deemed necessary for the full restoration of the government. She feels that she has vast interests, which ought to be represented in the Congress of the United States; and she is still willing to do whatever may appear to her to be her duty. But situated as we are—denied any voice in matters which most vitally affect our constituents—to indicate upon what other terms (if these are deemed insufficient) upon which, in our opinion, the Government might be permanently restored, would render us obnoxious to the charge of presumption or dictation, when it said we ought to exhibit only the spirit of submission. Texas may submit to whatever measures may be adopted, but it does not follow that with this submission, there will be good feeling and harmony. If this be desirable, it cannot be attained whilst a sense of injustice and oppression rankles in the heart of her people. If it be that it is required that the right of suffrage shall be conferred upon the emancipated colored population of the State, this can be more safely and effectually accomplished by kind treatment and magnanimity towards her white population than in any other way. To force it now, by Congressional action, against the almost universal sentiment of the whole State, under the penalty of exclusion or the destruction of the existing State government, will cause the hearts of men to rankle with the sense of injustice, and a feeling of bitterness which will pass from generation to generation. And the negro, from being the subject of kindness, as he is now, may be loathed and hated as the cause—the unconscious victim—of a feeling he has had nothing to do in producing.

The restoration of the government upon an enduring basis—and this is what we most heartily desire—ought, as we think, to be upon such terms as the good people of each section can heartily support. Malice and revenge should not find any place in them, otherwise strife and bitterness will be perpetual, sectional hate will be crystalized and become chronic. Can any man of either section wish to see this?

If the restoration were now complete, the test oath repealed, or stored away with the rellics of the war, universal amnesty proclaimed, what joy would there be in this land! It would be like the sun bursting suddenly from the clouds after many days of gloom and darkness. Then, indeed, a day of national thanksgiving might well be proclaimed. Then would the whole people, in every part of this broad land, and those now in exile and in foreign climes, who are Americans in heart, go into the temple of the living God and offer up heartfelt thanks for the restoration of kindly feeling and brotherly love to a united nation of freemen—united not merely in name, but in fact—who have been divided and at war with each other, but are so no longer. Then would a people, united truly and in fact, pour out upon bended knees the overflowing gratitude of pure hearts, unsullied by the remembrance of past bitterness, to the God of their fathers, for the blessed happiness afforded by mutual forgiveness, good feeling, and esteem.

a graduate, and for fifteen years, (up to the commencement of the war) a

The course of the Institution is that of the Virginia Military Institute, and is such as to make the Academy a great

POLYTECHNIC SCHOOL.

A school of theoretical and applied science, in which Languages and Literature also receive a due share of attention. The discipline and instructions are on the Complete Military Basis.

Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy, Ordnance, Gunnery and instructor of Artillery tactics, Major D. TRUEHEART, Graduate of the Virginia Military Institute in 1850—afterwards Assistant Professor of the Va. Military Institute—attached to the United States Coast Survey—late Major and Chief of Artillery in the C. S. Army.

Professor of Mathematics, Civil and Military Engineering, Architecture, Topographical and Industrial Drawing, and Assistant Instructor of Infantry tactics, Maj. W. A. OBENCHAIN, "first distinguished Graduate," of his Class in the Virginia Military Institute, and for efficient and meritorious services during the war promoted Captain of Engineers in the late C. S. Army.

Professor of Chemistry, Agricultural Chemistry, Geology and Mineralogy, Col. LEWELLYN HOXTON, "Distinguished graduate" of West Point Military Academy, and late Chief of Artillery to Hardee's Corps.

Professor of Latin, French, Ethics and Belles Letres, to be appointed shortly.

Surgeons Drs. E. & W. S. STRUDWICK.

New appointments will be made, and the Chairs now filled will be subdivided as soon as the number of Cadets makes it desirable.

Applicants for Professorships must be gentlemen of Scientific and Military education, who have served in the field.

Candidates for admission as Cadets are advised to come without delay. Until the 1st. of February next, all those Cadets present at the Academy, will be pushed forward in their studies irrespective of classes, so as to enable them, at that time, to enter the most advanced classes for which they may be found qualified. By coming at once they may gain an entire year in the term of their education.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

See notice of the Inspectors of Election for Mayor and Commissioners.

The next session of Springfield Academy, C. N. Allen, A. M., Principal, will commence on the 22nd. inst.

COUNCIL OF STATE.—This body met in this city this morning. Whatever transpires of a public nature, in their session, we shall be able to give to-morrow.

GAS.—We are pleased to learn that the Gas Company in this City has reduced the price of the light from $10 to $8 per thousand feet. The new arrangement went into operation on the 1st instant.

SUPREME COURT.—This tribunal convened in this City this morning,—the Chief Justice and both the associate Judges being in attendance. About fifty young gentlemen were duly examined and admitted to practice in the several County Courts of the State. We will publish the list to-morrow.

Applicants for Superior Court license will be examined to-morrow.

THE CHARTER ELECTION.—Considerable interest is being exhibited in the election for Mayor and Commissioners on Monday next. As heretofore announced, Chas. B. Root and W. D. Haywood, Esqrs., are the opposing candidates for Mayor, and "legion" is the name of the candidates for "Aldermen." The City interests demand the best practical talent and the highest efficiency, and we trust that our citizens will make judicious and safe selections.

SERIOUS AFFRAY.—A desperate fight occurred in the vicinity of the market house, in this city, on Saturday night, between Quent. Bryan and Wiley Sauls. We have not learned, with sufficient accuracy to state them, the particulars which led to the rencontre. Several pistol shots were exchanged, one of which took effect upon Sauls, entering the region of the abdomen and lodging immediately under the skin on the back. Dr. McKee was promptly summoned, and extracted the ball, but the wounded man now lies in a very critical condition, with the chances, we learn, decidedly adverse to his recovery.

Bryan was at once arrested, but while in temporary confinement, in the Mayor's office, and while the attention of the policeman on guard was momentally averted, he raised the window and jumped to the ground, a considerable distance, without injury, and in the darkness succeeded in effecting his escape. He has not yet been arrested.

P. S.—Since the foregoing was written, we learn that Sauls has died. We presume that a reward will be at once offered for the apprehension of Bryan.

"THE LAND WE LOVE."—The January number of this most admirable Magazine has just reached us,—probably been detained somewhere en route to us. The table of contents indicates unsually attractive matter, which we will refer to more particularly, in a day or two, when we shall have looked over it.

SEE FIRST and fourth pages for late news and interesting miscellany.

THE UNIVERSITY.—We are gratified to learn that proper efforts are being made to secure a full attendance of the Trustees of the University, in this City, on the 26th inst. Matters of vital importance to its well-being are to be considered. We trust that the deliberations of the Board will eventuate in decided and immediate advantage to this institution, which should be the object of common State pride and fostering care.

NEW POSTMASTERS.—The following appointments of Postmasters have been made in this State, viz: Mount Nebo, Yadkin county, J. Adams, vice J. C. Pickens, failed to give bond; Yadkinsville, Yadkin county, H. B. Peters, vice J. G. Masters, resigned; Pleasant Ridge, Gaston county, Mrs. J. Neagle, vice Mrs. R. P. Holland, resigned; New Market, Randolph county, D. Newlin, vice Mrs. E. B. Newlin, resigned.

THE HOLLYWOOD MEMORIAL BAZAAR.—We published, a few days since, the eloquent, womanly and touching appeal of Miss Nannie Daves, Agent for all the counties east of Orange, for contributions to the Bazaar proposed to be held in Richmond, on the fourth of February, by the ladies of the Hollywood Memorial Association. It is their wish that each of the late Confederate States, with Maryland, should be represented, as the Association is interested equally in all the deceased soldiers of the South, from whatever State they may have come, who are buried at Hollywood; and it is hoped that the Bazaar will illustrate how nobly these States can emulate each other in love and good works on this occasion of so much interest to all.

Mrs. Thomas H. Wynne, of Richmond, we are requested to state, will have charge of the North Carolina table, and she solicits contributions of every kind,—eggs, butter, cakes, pickles, meat, preserves, fancy articles, &c,—which can be sent to her address, in care of the Southern Express Company. Let North Carolina be a successful rival with the most liberal of her sisters in this generous emulation.

The Bazaar is on the plan of a gift enterprise. Many valuable articles, including pianos, sewing machines, &c., have already been contributed. The tickets (which can be obtained by written or verbal application to Mrs. Wynne) are $1 each, and a person purchasing a ticket will draw something, from a piano down to a jar of pickles. There are no blanks.

A MEETING of the lot owners of Oakdale Cemetery, in Wilmington, was held a few days since, for the purpose of electing officers of the Association. Dr. A. J. De Rosset was chosen President. This Cemetery is a beautiful spot, and the care bestowed upon it by the citizens and the municipality reflects credit upon both. Nothing, ordinarily, so marks the refinement and culture of a community as a scrupulous regard for the silent city of the dead.

The Cemetery at Wilmington has all the incidental advantages of locality and scenery to render it attractive, and its capability of improvement has doubtless stimulated the pious exertions of the citizens in its ornamentation. While our own City Cemetery has none of these natural advantages, there is still no reason why its improvement should be so much neglected. The rude wooden fence, the irregular arrangement of the walks, and the general evidences of decay, are inexcusable. The City Treasury, at the present time, is probably inadequate to any considerable outlay upon the grounds, &c., but would not such an Association as that which exists in Wilmington, composed of those, generally, who have the proper city pride, and of those, particularly, who cherish an affection for sacred, kindred dust deposited there, be a good idea? We throw out the suggestion.

General News.

The world has never seen a more shameful proceeding than the imposition of negro suffrage on the District of Columbia by men who voted against] it in their own States. Boldly avowing that they have a right to use the District for experiments, they are exercising their legislative power for a policy comdemned by their own people, and odious to those on whom it is inflicted. The people of the District are thus the victims of a tyranny that is both heartless and senseless—that fears not God nor regards man. —Rich. Enquirer.

THE PRESIDENTIAL MANSION.—The City Council at its session yesterday afternoon passed a resolution giving General Rosser the privilege of purchasing the Presidential mansion in this city, for the use of the Ladies' Southern Relief Association. The price fixed by the Council was $35,000 for the house and grounds, without the furniture, and $40,000 including the furniture.—Rich. Whig.

Senator Sumner is cultivating a sublime patronage of literature. At his house in Washington all the literary and scientific celebrities of the day, who happen to be in that city, are invited to dry conversazione, to which the leg of mutton "swarry" of Mr. Samuel Weller would be infinitely preferable.

A newspaper called the Laughing Hyena has been started in Texas. What sort of an animal is its editor?

The Missouri State Senate has passed, and the House of Delegates tabled, bills to repeal the test oaths in that State.

Thirty thousand marriages took place in Ohio during the past year—six thousand more than during any previous year.

Rev. Dr. Beckwith, of New Orleans, is spoken of as the probable clergyman to be elected to the Episcopal See of Florida, made vacant by the death of the Rt. Rev. Dr. Rutledge.

The exact munber of Confederate dead buried in the vicinity of the various camps in Ohio has been ascertained to be 2,307.

There is a hospital for lepers in San Francisco, the leprosy having been introduced by the Chinese emigrants.

The lower house of the New York Legislature passed the Constitutional amendment on Thursday. It had already passed the Senate.

Several National Banks in St. Louis have agreed to unite in the request that Congress allow no contraction in the national currency.

"In this country the shortest political road is that which leads from a majority to a minority. Our party will take this road when it rashly begins impeachment."

Donati's great comet will be visible to mortal eyes again in the year A. D. 2,858. Cut this paragraph out for reference, and don't fail to see it.

The round trip from the United States to Paris and back, during the Exposition, be will at the rate of $130 to $150 in gold—on board the Great Eastern.

A $3,000 monument to the Confederate dead of Amity county, Mississippi, is to be inaugurated on Washington's birthday.

THE FIRE AT NORFOLK, VA.—We published yesterday an account of a destructive fire at Norfolk, on Tuesday morning, which destroyed the Atlantic Hotel and other property. The "Day Book" says:

The Atlantic Hotel was constructed about ten years ago, was the most spacious and elegant hotel in the State, and was kept by Colonel A. G. Newton, who was only about one-third insured. We have been unable to ascertain his loss, but it cannot fall far short of $20,000. The building cost about $100,000, and belonged to a company of merchants who are known as the Norfolk Hotel company, who doubtless had the hotel insured, but it is supposed that the insurance will not cover the loss by $50,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.

The opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States is to be delivered to-morrow. It is based on the question presented in the cases ex parte of Marr, of Louisiana, and Garland, of Arkansas, who, having participated with the South in the late war, ask to be re-admitted to practice at the bar of the Supreme Court. It involves more particularly the constitutionality of the law extending to Attorneys in the United States Courts the provisions of the act of July, 1862, which requires a test oath of civil, military and naval officers, with penalties for perjury.

BAUGH & SONS,

SOLE PROPRIETORS, AT THE
Delaware River Chemical Works,
PHILADELPHIA, U. S. A.

This old established MANURE is manufactured from Bones that have not been burned or steamed, and it contains all their original organic matter. It is active in its operation, and is a fertilizer of great durability. It does not exhaust the soil like Peruvian Guano, but on the contrary permanently improves it.

Previous to 1861 it was introduced into the Southern States to considerable extent, and again in 1865, where it has been used with remarkable success upon Cotton, Corn, Tobacco, and all Crops.

A trial will convince any planter of its merits.—Pamphlets containing well-known Southern evidence furnished upon application to New York or Philadelphia offices.

Thine Own.

The following beautiful and touching verses, by a New Orleans lady, were written as a farewell to her husband during her illness and in prospect of an early departure to the better land.

Call me no more thine own—the summer
So loved by me, shall never come again!
I scarce shall look upon the spring's pale flowers,
And in this life of weariness and pain
Shall be no more thine own.

Frood from gray winter, blue shall glow the sky;
But ere the sweet-breathed violets grow pale
This fading form low in the dust shall lie,
And be no more thine own.

The shadow of the parting hour is nigh—
It falls, dear one, upon my heart and thine;
Alas! to leave thee when life's morning hour
Is goldened o'er by love almost divine—
To be no more thine own.

I soon shall leave thee! thou beloved, will feel
A gloomy shadow o'er thy pathway thrown;
And all too soon the truth will o'er thee steal,
That in this dreary world thou art alone,
And I no more thine own.

No more thine own! To wake for thee at eve
The chords of music sweetest to thine ear:
To have thee still alike through joy or grieve,
To be thy truest friend, of all most dear,
But not on earth thine own.

On these near hills, whose beauty never fades,
My lingering feet shall rest. Oh, do not weep!
Thou too shalt dwell where sorrow no'er invades,
With Him who giveth His beloved sleep,
And I shall be thine own.

CANDY ADULTERATIONS.—Our new health espionage is bringing to light some queer things. The common candies and confectionaries of commerce are not altogether toothsome or wholesome, if recent investigations are to be believed.

The adulteration of sugar, candies and spices is a trade largely and regularly carried on. Instead of plaster, which till lately entered so largely into the manufacture of confectionery in place of sugar, a new article has been discovered called terra alba, or white earth. It comes from Ireland, and costs by the barrel one and a half cents per pound while loaf sugar costs about seventeen cents. The bodies of candies, the coasting of almonds and lozenges are made from this earthly material. It is whiter than plaster, and is very much used in the adulteration of flour. A glue, paint and oil manufacturer of New York has sent round his annual circular, to the principal confectioners, calling attention to a fresh arrival of this white earth.

The common method of flavoring candies, almonds, sugar plums, etc., is with deleterious substances. The pineapple flavor, the bansna and the peach are made from fusil oils, which are very poisonous. Bitter almonds flavor is made from prussic acid unadulterated. Pine apple flavor is obtained from rotten cheese, very rotten, and nitric acid.

Gum arabic for pure gum drops is costly.—An article has been invented of the most beautiful appearance, that is used instead of the gum.

In pure candy cochineal is used to color red, and saffron for the yellow. But in the common candies poisonous coloring is put, the same that is used to color wines and liquors. One of the most common is "carlot," into which arsenic largely enters. A few grains of the substance will color a cask of wine. Licorice drops for the "trade" are made of poor brown sugar, glue and lamp-black, flavored with licorice. Much of the cream of tartar used for bread is made of terra alba and tartaric acid.

The monthly Report" for the month of Agriculture, Washington, has a letter from Brevet Col. J. Hamilton, dated Raleigh, N. C., in which he says: "The reason that a bott can resist the action of agents administered, is his power of drawing his head into the walls of the stomach by his tentacles. But he cannot resist chloroform. A table-spoonful of chloroform, screened by a couple of spoonfuls of any good mucilage, will make him let go his hold on the stomach even after having bored nearly through." We suppose this must be followed by a purgative.

Sir Walter Scott used to tell of a woman in Fife, who, summing up the misfortunes of a black year in her history, said: "Let me see, sir; first, we lost our wee callant; and then Jenny; and then the gude man h'mself died; and then the cow died too, poor hizzy; but, to be sure, her hide brought me fifteen shillings."

"I wish you would pay a little attention to what I am saying, sir," roared an irate lawyer to an exasperated witness. "Well, I am paying as little as I can," was the calm reply.

CONTRABAND'S VIEW ON A HORSE-POWER.—"Golly," said he, "a hoss doin' de work, and ride he-self."
